I lead the not-for-profit trade association that represents the interests of federal hydropower customers, including municipalities and co-ops, in 6 states. These customers take power from the Southwestern Power Administration. We work with many entities including the Department of Army, Department of Energy, state fish and wildlife, members of Congress, and many others to ensure that the value of federal hydropower is protected for our members. We also fund roughly $50 million a year in rehabilitations on Corps hydropower facilities.

At Southwestern I was fortunate enough to do a variety of jobs that included drafting and negotiating contracts, managing special projects, interacting with Congressionals, and briefing the Secretary of Energy.
